

King & Shaxson strengthens its Treasury Solutions team

King & Shaxson are pleased to announce the addition of Dean Carter to its treasury consultancy team, which provides services to banks and building societies.

Dean is an experienced building society treasury and risk professional having worked in both London and Paris and, formerly, as Head of Treasury at the Nottingham Building Society. He has also held the post of General Manager - Operational Risk and Compliance.

Dean has recently moved into treasury consultancy practice and will be working exclusively for King & Shaxson, as Director of Treasury Solutions, and ALMIS International, a treasury and risk systems provider. This synergy will provide a comprehensive service across the whole of the treasury risk spectrum.

King & Shaxson will be drawing on Dean's considerable experience and expertise to help develop a comprehensive treasury solutions offering, including the organization and development of the very successful Treasury Forum for small and medium sized building societies.

His work as Director of Treasury Solutions at King & Shaxson will also include investment and funding advice, treasury training, risk management advice, policy and procedures review, interest rate forecasting, economic reviews, ALCO attendance and advice, and counterparty services advice.

His work at ALMIS International is to help clients develop custom ALCO packs, analysis and specifically assist with the development of treasury systems. Dean will assist ALMIS in the delivery of specific Board and Executive treasury management and ALCO training tailored to individual needs.

Marc Dodd, Director of Money Markets at King & Shaxson, commented, “I am delighted to have secured the experience, knowledge and vision that Dean brings to our team as we strive to continue to add value to the services provided to our clients. Our aim is to help clients face and meet the challenges in their Treasury operations, in what is an ever changing financial world.”
